The 4th International Symposium on Process Chemistry

( 2019 Summer Symposium of the Japanese Society for Process Chemistry )

Hironao Sajiki (President of the Japanese Society for Process Chemistry)
Takahiko Akiyama (Chairperson of ISPC2019)

It is our great honor and pleasure to invite you to participate in the 4th International Symposium on Process Chemistry (ISPC 2019) which will be held on 24th-26th July 2019, in Kyoto under the auspices of the Japanese Society for Process Chemistry (JSPC).

JSPC was founded in 2001, just beginning of this century. It organizes summer and winter symposia in a year. Members of JSPC belong to pharmaceutical and chemical industries, manufacturers of pharmaceuticals intermediates, universities, and so on. More than 500 participants discuss process chemistry in the summer symposium every year.

Furthermore, JSPC already organized International Symposium on Process Chemistry (ISPC) in 2008, 2011, and 2015 in Kyoto with great success, and total number of participants of the symposia has exceeded 2500. JSPC is planning to organize The 4th International Symposium on Process Chemistry (ISPC2019) in the summer of 2019 in Kyoto.

Chemists both in industry and academia who have interests in process chemistry are cordially invited to join ISPC 2019 and discuss recent progress of various areas of process chemistry.

ISPC 2019 will include plenary and keynote lectures by top runners of process chemistry in the world, selected short oral presentations (selected from applicants of poster presentations), poster presentations, and exhibitions.

The exhibition will offer good opportunities to provide process chemistry researchers with the latest information on scientific tools, information processing technology, reagents and books that would help support and promote their research activities.

In this connection, I hope companies will understand the purpose of ISPC 2019, and will introduce their latest technologies and products at the exhibition.

We look forward to seeing you in Kyoto.

Sincerely,

* The 4th International Symposium on Process Chemistry (2019 Summer Symposium) will comprise lectures by invited lecturers, general presentations (oral presentations and poster sessions), meetings for information exchange and an exhibition for process chemistry-related companies.
